A person is seen from behind, standing in a field of tall, golden-brown grass. They are looking towards a bright sun that is low on the horizon, creating a strong lens flare and a warm, golden glow across the entire scene. The person's hand is raised to their forehead, possibly shielding their eyes from the sun. The background is filled with out-of-focus trees and foliage, also bathed in the warm light of the sun.

# An Automatic Smart Car? My month with a data-driven app.

> to be published by April 14

I'm sure you've seen the commercials. Let an insurance company stick a tracking unit in your car to measure your driving and potentially save on insurance rates. While saving money always sounds attractive, I wasn't sure I was ready to give that much data away without first testing it myself.

Enter Automatic, a new hardware and smartphone app combo that can communicate with your car's brain to unlock a whole word of insight. It can track your hard brakes, your fast accelerations, and your high-speed sessions all in an effort to make you a safer driver- and save you money.

!Automatic in action

Along with the driver action tracking, Automatic logs a trove of useful information about each trip you take: the total distance, total time, total fuel cost, avg MPG, a full GPS route, and more. If you've ever used a fitness GPS app on your phone while jogging- it's like that, for your car, times ten. I'm getting all nerdy just thinking about it.

## Getting Started

To use the app, you'll need the $99 Automatic Key, a small dongle that you'll plug in under the dash. Automatic claims the Key will work in virtually any car
